

Andrew J. Ecker, Ed.D. is director of the Lower Hudson Regional Partnership Center at Putnam/Northern Westchester BOCES in Yorktown Heights, NY. Dr. Ecker serves as co-president of the New York Council of Administrators of Special Education (NYCASE). Nationally, he serves on the Policy and Legislative Committee for the Council of Administrators of Special Education (CASE) and on the review board of the Journal of Special Education Leadership. Dr. Ecker is currently on special education advisory boards for Fordham and Manhattanville Universities. Previously, he's served as the Hudson Valley Schools' region leader for the Suicide Prevention Center of New York, and on numerous school and community mental health networks. His prior work includes special education school improvement roles; teacher and director at a therapeutic residential high school; adjunct graduate professor; and professional basketball player. He has authored multiple peer-reviewed journal articles on Positive Behavior Interventions and Supports (PBIS) and implementing evidence-based practices, contributed to national guidance and resources, and presented nationally on PBIS, school mental health, and special education topics.